VETARZO BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD.

This remarkable compound, the result of the latest developments and achievements of modern chemistry, pharmacology, and therapeutics, is without equal in all cases of defective nerve power, whether induced by worry, over-work, unhealthy climate, dissipation, excess, youthful imprudence, or other influences incidental to the wear and tear and haste or overstrain of modern life. Sleeplessness, tremblings, palpitation, nervous dyspepsia, low spirits, mental and bodily prostration, muscular and local weakness, general and nervous debility, faulty nutrition, premature decay or deficiency of the vital forces, impaired vitality, harassing dreams, night disturbances, sudden startings, dimness of sight, defective hearing, loss of memory, inability to perform the various duties of life, or to enjoy its pleasures, restlessness that can settle to nothing, irritability of temper, female complaints, hysteria, painful periods, backache, bearing down sensations, nervous headache, wasting disease, night sweats, and all other phases of brain and nerve exhaustion, are successfully combated by this highly scientific preparation. Bracing up the system generally, it gives tone to the exhausted nerves, arrests all weakening wasting discharges, involuntary losses, &c. ; restores the failing energies, and imparts new life and vigour to what had so recently seemed worn out, "used up," and valueless.

VETARZO BLOOD MEDICINE.

Never before was there anything like it, nor can its marvellous properties ever be equalled in all cases of poorness, impurity, or other imperfection of the blood from whatever cause arising. No sooner is it imbibed into the system than it permeates and penetrates to the minutest capillaries, overcoming and expelling the virus of disease, wheresoever and in whatsoever form met with ; removing all blotches, pimples, scurf, scurvy, scrofulous and glandular swellings, discolorations, roughness and unsightly patches, &c. Its effects are almost magical in the treatment of gout, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, pains and swellings of the joints, discharges, secondary symptoms, eczema, lepra, psoriasis, bad legs, bad breasts, abscesses, ulcers, sores, goitre or Derbyshire neck, it improves the general health, and quickly removes long-standing bronchitis, asthma, and hacking, straining, spasmodic cough, too often the precursor of consumption.

CAUTION.—Ask for "VETARZO Brain and Nerve Food," or "VETARZO Blood Medicine," whichever is required, and see that you get them, as unprincipled vendors often try to palm off inferior preparations (usually their own manufacture), for the sake of extra profit. Price in England, 2/9. Every genuine bottle of these medicines bears the British Government Stamp with the words "VETARZO REMEDIES" impressed thereon, in white letters on a red ground, by direction of His Majesty's Hon. Commissioners. Registered Trade Mark "VETARZO." Legal proceedings will be taken against persons pirating.

COMMON SENSE IN A NUTSHELL.—A NEW medical work on the causes and most scientific and effectual means of self-cure ever discovered for nervous exhaustion, depression of spirits, want of zest and energy, &c., with practical observations on marriage and full directions for removing certain disqualifications that destroy the happiness of wedded life. It also treats on urinary derangements, secondary symptoms, stricture, &c., and no sufferer should fail to procure a copy. Post free in plain envelope on receipt of Postal Order Sixpence, from THE VETARZO REMEDIES Co., Gospel Oak, London, or of Agents for above medicines. Price 10 annas Post Free.

Agents for India:—TREACHER AND CO., LTD., BOMBAY, BYCULLA, and POONA.

INDIAN CROP PROSPECTS.

ASSAM JUTE.

The first forecast of the jute crop of Eastern Bengal and Assam, 1910:—Note.—On the average of the five years ending 1907-1908, the area under jute in Eastern Bengal and Assam represents some 78·9 per cent. of the total area under jute in British India.

Character of the Crop.—In 1909, the monsoon rains were plentiful and being maintained until the latter part of October a good supply of moisture was left in the soil. The cold weather months were generally dry and in the group of districts in the Dacca and Chittagong divisions lying south of Mymensingh, the spring rains were tardy in their commencement.

Sowing generally began rather late and in some areas fields which were sown early had to be resown owing to the withering of the young plants. In the more easterly district heavy showers at the end of April and beginning of May did some damage to immature seedlings by flooding them. May and June have been marked by copious rainfall which has proved beneficial to the growth of crop. So far outlook is favourable.

Area sown.—According to the estimates of the District Officers, the total area under the crop this year is 2,218,600 acres, or an increase of 17,400 acres over last year's figure. Substantial expansion of acreage is reported from Tippera, Rajshahi, Dinajpur and Rangpur, the total increase in these districts amounting to about 60,000 acres. Most of the District Officers ascribe this, no doubt correctly, to the steady fall in the price of rice during the past year which has inclined the balance in favour of jute cultivation. A large decrease is reported from Dacca, Mymensingh, Faridpur, Bakarganj, Jalpaiguri, Malda and Goalpara, and is ascribed to unfavourable weather conditions prevailing before and at the time of sowing. I am inclined to think that this decrease, if it occurred at all, has been greatly exaggerated. The largest decrease, namely 14,000 acres, is reported from Jalpaiguri, but this is not warranted by the prevailing weather conditions as the rainfall in March was far above normal while good showers fell in April. The same remarks apply to Mymensingh which reports a loss of 9,000 acres under the crop. The general opinion of the trade appears to be that the acreage under the crop this year is not less than that of last year. With this opinion I am in accord, provided it is understood that the area reported from the districts last year was an underestimate by at least a lakh of acres. If this assumption is correct the total area sown with the crop this year comes to considerably over 23 lakhs of acres.

Condition and prospects.—Apart from the slight damage caused by heavy rain early in May, the condition of the crop is good. District Officers are almost unanimous in anticipating that with a continuance of favourable weather the average outturn per acre will be equal to if not better than last year.

Consolidated Forecast.—The Director of Agriculture, Bengal, estimates the total area under jute in that Province at 5,87,100 acres against 5,75,400 acres (revised) of last year. The consolidated estimate for the two provinces combined is therefore 29,12,100 acres against 27,76,600 acres (revised) last year; or an increase of about 5 per cent.

It was certainly a good messenger who brought the news to your house that Ayer's Sarsaparilla makes the blood "rich and red." This means so much to those who are thin, pale, feeble, weak, and nervous. After Ayer's Sarsaparilla has cured you, carry the glad message to a friend or neighbor.

Perhaps you suffer from the effects of a warm climate. Prolonged warm weather seriously impairs the strength of many people. The digestion is slow, and the liver becomes sluggish. Impurities in the blood accumulate and cause that feeling of downheartedness and depression.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

is of the greatest use in such cases. Its purifying, strengthening, and upbuilding properties will be of inestimable value to you.

As now made, Ayer's Sarsaparilla contains no alcohol.

There are many imitation Sarsaparillas.

Be sure you get "AYER'S."

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass., U.S.A.

TIRED, WORN-OUT, RUN DOWN.

Conditions we so often find in, and so often are we unable to find a cause. We grow tired over ordinarily easy work, old before our time, listless and lifeless and without energy or ambition. Appetite grows poor sleepless nights are passed no desire for work or pleasure. Then troubles of the nerves, the head, the stomach, liver, bowels, blood, in fact, the entire system is undermined and overcome. Such an array of system is appalling—but liability of same is certainty. Blood and nerve diseases are silent and insidious and do deadly work with little warning. At the first sign of the smallest symptom of nerve disorder get in touch with that King of all remedies.—

Prof. James' Electro-Tonic Pearls.

Their marvellous curative effects are manifested from the first day of their administration by a remarkable increase of nerve and Intellectual Power, with a feeling of courage, strength and comfort. Digestion is invigorated, appetite increases wonderfully, bowels becomes regular, countenance clear and ruddy, the eyes bright, sight improved, the step and gait again elastic and determined, the temper cheerful, the brain again active, memory tenacious, bodily nourishment increased and energy restored.

FREE.—In order to prove the abovementioned effects a trial bottle lasting for two days will be forwarded post paid to any person sending two annas postage stamps. Read these evidences.

J. R. Gaikwad, Mamlatdar of Sakri, writes that 'Please send two bottles of Prof. James' Electro Tonic Pearls by V. P. P. as soon as possible. They give good effects."

Mr. J. C. Britto from Ponda, writes that—"Prof. James' Electro-Tonic Pearls did me more good than all other medicine or Pills, or the most marvellous Electric belt, that would be produced. Please send immediately two bottles of it.'

AN INDIAN MUSEUM AS THE KING'S MEMORIAL.

In India our experience of museums not so far being encouraging, and until we see those in course of erection in Calcutta and Bombay make more satisfactory progress, museums will continue to be regarded with disfavour. In England, however, where there are already scores of museums filled with more or less interesting art treasures and specimens of ancient handicraft and of natural history, any project for establishment of another such institution almost invariably receives enthusiastic support. Such will probably be the experience of those who are now promoting a scheme for the founding of an Indian museum in London as a memorial to the late King-Emperor. The East India Company had an excellent library, now in possession of the India office, and an extensive museum, but the collections in the Museum were completely broken up in 1879 and dispersed, finding homes in Jermyn Street, at Kew, the British Museum and South Kensington. It was intended that the museum should be kept together as a whole but this was found impossible. The desirability of re-assembling the collections has been many times asserted, and deputations have made representations to the Home Government on the subject—so far without avail. Now, however, the matter had been taken up by the Royal Asiatic Society which has asserted that some such institution is required in London, as typifying India in its widest sense. Mr. C. E. D. Black, speaking on the subject the other day, remarked: "London is the seat of the supreme Government; here are to be found converging to its administrative centre the ties that unite us to our great Dominions in the East and here one would expect to find some central cynosure, if I may use the expression, which would serve to remind all that London is in a special sense the heart of our Eastern Empire." The principle admitted, what is wanted is a site and a suitable building. To obtain them will be no mean task, since adequately equipped an Indian Museum ought to cover more ground than the British. "No wonder," exclaimed Mr. Black, "that the very subject of India is unfamiliar, if not actually distasteful, to the British Public when so little trouble is taken to typify in the Metropolis by the erection of a noble and appropriate edifice, the extent and grandeur of our Eastern Empire."

By all means if they would have an Indian Museum, let us help them. Lord Curzon thinks the bulk of the money would be furnished by India. Though he thinks the Government of India might feel some reluctance in any large committent of their own resources in the present state of Indian finances. We have schemes of our own on foot of more or less utilitarian value. Let those of us who wish to contribute do so by all means, but we must ask those who have shaken the pagoda tree and carried home its fruits to unhouse some of these, for the benefit of their own posterity whom they hope to see return with more. Associated with Lord Curzon and Lord Lamington in this project are Sir G. Watt, Sir George Birdwood, Sir Muncherjee Bhownagree, Mr. Chisholm, Professor Boyd Dawkins, Mr. Whitworth and others, who will, doubtless bestir themselves to find the money, for so sanguine are some of them that the museum will take shape that Mr. Chisholm has decided in his own mind what that shape will be and where it will stand. He has fixed upon the south bank of the Thames between Westminster Bridge and Charing Cross Station. The axis, lying at right angle to the river, the building would face south, which all Indian buildings should do. The style of architecture would be pure Gujarathi, one of the happiest amalgamations of Hindu and Moslem art. And Mr. Chisholm has pondered further over the subject and would have the external portion entirely executed by Indians in London, with Indian materials, so that they would have a perfect Indian building and not an echo of one. The shell, however, he would have constructed by Englishmen, so that the workmen of both nations would be benefited. And the cost—between seven and eight hundred thousand pounds—is an amount similar to that to be expended on the London County Council hall. Yet, said Mr. Chisholm, there would be no competition between the two buildings—one might be likened to the beauty and grace of woman; the other to the strength and wisdom of man—as Tennyson expressed it: "Not like to like, but like in difference; perfect music set to noble words"—a quotation decidedly inappropriate.

And so the meeting held to discuss the matter ended in harmony, but we do not find that the hat went round or that the Honorary Secretary of the Society was overwhelmed with proferred subscriptions. Altogether there was more of poetry about the proceedings than of practical prose. Mr. Black declared that an Indian museum, in the widest and classical sense, ought to exhibit in the interior and exterior of the shell the unrivalled structural and decorative arts of India, while its exhibits would include the resources and manufactures of all those varieties of climate that are found between the eternal glaciers of the Muztagh on the north and the exuberant shores of Travancore on the south, and from the burning sands of Baluchistan on the west, to the humid valleys of Assam on the east. To the objection that such would be a Government museum, Mr. Black replies: "That is in great measure what we lack—an intelligently organised and glorified exhibition when all that is worth seeing and knowing about India is brought forward and exhibited in the best light for public edification." Indeed, instead of relegating the Museum to the custody of the Minister of English Education, Mr. Black would have it under the control of the Secretary of State. No doubt such an exhibition, such a storehouse of knowledge, constructed on a dignified scale and exhaustively equipped, would appeal to the young with great directness and success. There would be no better way of getting young people to vivify their book knowledge of Indian history and the unlimited resources of the country and quicken their interest in Eastern matters, than for their friends to take them for an afternoon tour through the galleries of the museum. That is so, but we should like to know what the Secretary of State has to say to all this, especially as it is proposed to utilise the site of his present Store Department and remove that to the vicinity of the city and the docks. It is a very excellent idea no doubt, but who is going to find the means of carrying it out? We doubt if the Secretary of State will or if the wealthy people of this country will trouble themselves very much about it.

THE COTTON SITUATION IN BOMBAY. As a rule it is difficult to arrive at a correct estimate of the stock of cotton in Bombay on a given date, but the estimate of the 1st October last is probably the nearest ever made, as the unsold stock and mill stocks were then so low, that the difficulty of estimation was reduced to a minimum. We may, therefore, infer that the actual stock of cotton on that date in all hands (i.e., mill stocks, exporters' stock and unsold stock) did not exceed 200,000 bales, and that a reliable basis on which to work future estimates was then obtained. Receipts of cotton into Bombay since 1st October have produced a record, and up to the 14th July aggregated 3,112,000 bales. Last year's receipts from 15th July to 30th September were 42,000 bales, and we may safely take it that the receipts this year, during the same period, will not exceed 63,000 bales, thus bringing the total receipts this year to 30th September to 3,175,000 bales. Shipments from 1st October to 14th July reached 1,964,000 bales, and as shipments last year from 15th July to 30th September were 88,000 bales, we may calculate on as much going forward this year; in fact, things now point to this total being exceeded. At this figure, however, the total shipments to 30th September will be raised to 2,050,000 bales. We now come to the mill consumption and herein lies the crux of our whole estimate. We place this for the year, 1st October, 1909, to 30th September, 1910, at 1,080,000 bales, and in making this estimate we have taken the consumption at 100,000 bales less than it has been in any year since 1905 when the receipts have been on a fair scale. We have also borne in mind that some of the mills were not working during the early part of the year under review, and we have taken into account the loss in weight consequent on using the rain-damaged and inferior cotton which mills have been buying during the last few months, and which represents an increase in consumption of about 5 per cent. during the time it has been used. We, therefore, think no one will cavil at our estimate. The figures for up-country by rail we take at 30,000 bales. Placing the above figures in a tabulated form we arrive at the following:—

| | Bales. |
|---|---|
| Stock of Cotton on 1st October, 1909 ...... | 200,000 |
| Receipts 1st Oct. 1909 to 30th Sept. 1910... | 3,175,000 |
| | 3,375,000 |
| Shipments, 1st Oct. 1909 to 30th Sept. 1910. | 2,050,000 |
| | 1,325,000 |
| Mill Consumption, 1st Oct. 1909 to 30th Sept. 1910 ... ... ... | 1,080,000 |
| | 245,000 |
| Up-country by rail 1st Oct. 1909 to 30th Sept. 1910 ... ... ... ... | 30,000 |
| Stock in Bombay in all hands 1st Oct. 1910 ... ... ... ... | 215,000 |

From the above it will be seen that the stock of cotton on 1st October this year will be practically the same as it was last year, and as our estimate of receipts from now until the 30th September may be taken as the maximum, while our estimate of shipments for same period will be the minimum, the stock will probably be less than the figures we give. It should be remembered that this stock will contain a fair percentage of unmerchantable cotton, as a large amount of more or less rain-damaged stuff has reached our market this year. We can scarcely hope to see new crop cotton available for mills in October as the small arrivals of Bengals which may be expected that month will be chiefly on exporters' account. Mills would therefore do well to replenish their stocks while there is yet time, as cheaper cotton is not in sight, and the chances are distinctly in favour of a rise in the price of ready cotton between now and the end of October. The statistical position of old crop is strong, and the situation points rather to a strengthening of this position than to the chance of any weakening influence intervening, the more so as prices here have lately given way considerably. Regarding new crop it is too early yet to say anything. The crop has made a fairly good start, but the outturn will depend on the progress of the monsoon.

NOVEL EMIGRATION SCHEMES. COMPETITION for British emigrants seems to be daily growing keener, and the overseas dominions vie with each other in the attractions which they can offer to industrious and skilful workmen from home. The type of man which the colonies want being the same type of man which finds it most easy to get regular employment in his own country, the inducement offered has to be something more than ordinarily attractive and we now find some interesting and novel features in a scheme which the Australian colony of Victoria has prepared in the hope of meeting more successfully the competition in the emigration market which they have experienced lately from the far side of the Atlantic. Realising that the Britisher at home is probably not much attracted by the hardships entailed in the breaking of virgin land, they are desirous of opening to immigrants a large tract of country, where a great deal of development work has already been done, and where the settlers will be by no means entirely cut off from the advantages and conveniences of civilisation. This tract has been cleared of forest for the last thirty-five years, so that many of the difficulties of cultivation in newly opened country will have been removed and it should be well watered by a considerable irrigation scheme which has already provided for a million acres and is to be extended as occasion demands. The colony is ready to receive 6,000 farmers and their wives and families, a population computed at 30,000 and is prepared not only to build them houses but to provide at the same time schools, roads, railways and post-offices. Another new idea is the land settler's ticket now in force between America and Australia and shortly to be extended to the United Kingdom. This enables a prospective settler to visit the new country, before he finally makes up his mind, at half or two-thirds the ordinary fare. The colony lends the money which is re-payable in four years at five per cent. interest. On these lines Victoria has sent two agents to London to conduct an energetic campaign, of which it will be interesting to watch the results.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS.

(FROM OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, JULY 1.

CONFIRMATION OF PRINCE OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales was confirmed at Windsor yesterday by the Archbishop of Canterbury. The youthful heir to the Throne travelled with his parents and Princess Mary and Prince Albert from Paddington, to the Royal Borough. The Queen-Mother, who has not been out in public since the funeral, decided at the last moment, for the sake of a greater privacy, to travel to Windsor by motor-car. Large crowds gathered at various points along the route from Marlborough House to Paddington. King George wore mourning dress, and his two sons were in Naval cadets' uniform. At Windsor, where many members of the Royal Family assembled, there was a luncheon party at the Castle prior to the confirmation. The ceremony of confirmation in the private Chapel of Windsor Castle was beautiful and impressive. Special preparations had been made. The decoratons were on a most lavish scale, the flowers and plants having been brought from the gardens at Frogmore. The Royal pew, which their Majesties use when they attend home service, was occupied by the Royal servants who have been associated with the young Prince. The ceremony was choral, and the officiating clergy were the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Dean of Windsor, the Rev. D. Wright, who prepared His Royal Highness for confirmation. After the ceremony of administering the rite of confirmation, His Grace delivered an eloquent exhortation, the Prince meantime remaining seated on a chair in front of the alter rails. Their Majesties accompanied by the Prince of Wales and the other members of the Royal Family, afterwards returned to the green drawing-room where King George and Queen Mary received those who had been present at the service in the chapel. Queen Alexandra, before returning to London with the King and Queen, visited the Mortuary Chapel, which was beautifully decorated with flowers.

LONDON SCHOOL OF MEDICINE FOR WOMEN.

Mrs. Garret Anderson, M.D., presided yesterday afternoon at a prize-distribution in connection with the London School of Medicine for Women. Dr. Garrat Anderson is the Lady Mayor of Aldeburgh, and is the best known lady doctors of our time. In fact, she was one of the pioneers of women in the field of medicine. Her study of the subject was commenced in 1860, but in those days the Medical Council was less broad-minded than it has since become, and Miss Garret—as she then was—was refused permission to attend the examinations for the degrees of M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P. Turning, accordingly, to the Society of Apothecaries, Miss Garrett successfully passed their examinations and took their licence to practise. For her degree of M.D., she studied at the University of Paris, and there obtained it. For over twenty years Dr. Garrett Anderson held the post of Dean of the London School of Medicine for Women, and for twenty-four years she was senior physician to the New Hospital for Women. Devoted to her work Dr. Garrett Anderson finds her chief pleasures in its pursuit, is fond of spending her holidays in travel, and makes gardening her chief hobby.

LADY BALLOONIST.

Though the definite award has not yet been made by the Royal Aero Club, it is believed that the Hon. Mrs. Assheton-Harbord is the winner of the annual balloon race for the Hedges-Butler challenge cup. The race started from Hurlingham yesterday, and Mrs. Harbord's balloon Nirvana landed late last night at Beccles, a town in Suffolk, not far from the Norfolk border. The balloon was piloted by Mr. G. F. Pollock, and carried as passengers, besides the Hon. Mrs. Assheton-Harbord, the Hon. E. Brabazon and Mr. David Bingham. The nearest rival to Mrs. Assheton-Harbord was Mr. John Dunville, who got as far as Ipswich. The Hon. Mrs. Assheton-Harbord said yesterday that in none of her previous aerial journeys had she experienced such suitable climatic conditions. "We kept at an average altitude of 10,000 feet, and the air was so clear that the panoramic view of the surrounding country was delightful." She is passionately fond of ballooning but at the same time thinks very highly indeed of the aeroplane. At present, however, she thinks it is eminently more suitable for men. Later on, of course, there is no doubt that women will take up the pastime.

WEDDING SUPERSTITIONS.

Though popular superstitions may lack reason or reasonable explanation, they must have an origin, and this has formed the basis of quite an interesting book by T. Sharper Knowlson "The Origin of Popular Superstition" —(Werner Laurie)—The question of the wedding ring and why it should be placed on the fourth finger of the left hand he traces back to a writer in the British Apollo (1708). "There is nothing more in this" he says "than that the custom was handed down to the present age from the practice of our ancestors, who found the left hand more convenient for sub-ornament than the right in what it is ever less employed . . ." The old-fashioned notion that a shoe should bring luck at a wedding is another superstition curious to explain. "It was in the sense of confirming a sale or exchange, that the Jews understood the removal and giving of a shoe or sandal." In a different sense the removal of a shoe marks the winding up of negotiations among the laws and ordinances given in the book of Deuteronomy, where the widow who is refused marriage by her husband's surviving brother is directed to come unto him in the presence of the elders, and loose his shoe from off his foot, thus asserting her independence and heaping upon him the blame for failure to comply with the law. "In Anglo-Saxon marriages the bride's father delivered her shoe to the bridegroom who touched her on the head with it in token of his authority."

SOME SMART GOWNS WORN AT THE HAYMARKET.

How the stage reflects fashions was shown last night, when "Priscilla Runs Away" was produced at the Haymarket, and the costly dresses worn by the principals might have served as models for society ladies anxious for modes to meet the requirements of half mourning. Miss Helen Hay, in the first act, wore a lovely gown of pale lilac satin charmeuse, with an overdress of the same colour. Miss Francis Ivor had a charming gown of black silk poplin, covered with embroidery right down the front and back, with a collar of the fashionable broderie anglaise. Miss Neilson-Terry, the talented young actress who took the name part, wore a lovely "robe d'interieur" of blue chiffon. The bodice was draped and the skirt, with its broad band of pale blue satin, was closely pleated from the waist. A kimono mantle in chiffon of a deeper blue, and richly embroidered in silver, completed this toilette. Among other pretty things worn by Miss Neilson Terry was a long motor coat of grey cloth to match a dress of fine pearl grey cloth. Large shaded ostrich feathers are again fashionable in smart millinery. Deep hems of satin are very much worn, and they add greatly to the appearance of skirts of ninon or crepe-de-chine. Very bright tones of green, royal blue, rose, mustard, or pink are seen in the adorning of otherwise sober little frocks.

FAMILY LIFE.

Can the family life continue quite on the old lines in these changing times? The Bishop of Stepney thinks not. Addressing a conference of secretaries of the Girls' Friendly Society, at Westminster, yesterday, the Bishop said it was not, to his mind, possible that the family could keep together quite on old lines. Amongst the very poor one saw it again and again, for girls were the principal wage-earners in the family circle. One saw it higher up, where girls had educational advantages which 30 or 40 years ago would not have been thought of. Home would require handling with a certain measure of delicacy if it was still to keep its attraction and that most elevating and binding force which belonged to it. Industrial relations were strained, and girls and women were being crushed down in what really had come to be not genuine competition, but competition on most brutal and unequal terms.

SALES.

Most of the big summer sales have started this week, and from quite an early hour battalions of fair bargain-hunters make life very uncomfortable for ordinary pedestrians in the West End. I visited Messrs. Peter Robinson's during the rush hours, tried in vain to get beyond the main entrance. The interior of the huge store was packed to suffocation with a crowd that meant to get to the counters or perish in the attempt. One of the attendants said that a large number of ladies were up betimes and lined up outside the shop waiting for the door to open at eight o'clock. "Several of them I noticed go in then are still busy in some part of the shop," he said; "others have gone away in taxi-cabs, smiling and happy, surrounded on all sides with packages which must have cost a pretty penny altogether in spite of the big cut in prices. Since the sale started this morning there must have been tons of goods carried away by customers, and several American ladies have actually sent trunks down to be packed with the dozens of purchases they have made.

AMERICAN WOMEN LOVE IT.

"American women just love this bargain-hunting pastime, and they think nothing of ordering half-a-dozen costumes, several blouses, hats, and countless other things which are packed by our people in trunks that are never opened till they reach the other side." Society women with plenty of money are just as eager for a bargain as their poorer sisters, and will often wage desperate battle for the possession of a blouse or a dress length which they have no need for in reality, but mean to have because somebody else has expressed a desire to purchase it.

NECK BANDS.

Now that fashion permits every woman to go about with her neck "naked to the world" —as the Irish Players would say—we are nearly all anxious to adopt a style so simple and comfortable, and even those who do not care for the collarless gowns hesitate to lay themselves open to the suspicion of possessing necks that are not pretty enough to show. Dress and toilet experts have devised a means of bridging over the interval occupied by bleaching, reducing or filling out the unbeautiful neck; they have produced the "hallucination." A hallucination is something which covers up the neck so that the skin is not seen though apparently quite visible. "It was entirely of pale pink chiffon of a shade to match a perfect skin. It was the shape of a Dutch neck and made to cover the neck and shoulders entirely. It fastened invisibly in the back and when fitted to the customer's throat you would not know that it was not her real skin. Over this hallucination she wore an open lace yoke which was cut in Dutch neck fashion." Another friend to the woman whose neck is imperfect is the veil of chiffon, extra wide and long which comes down from a big hat brim, leaving a great fold round the neck. This is deftly arranged so that it screens the throat without actually hiding and the effect is usually quite lovely.

CLEVER WOMEN.

The Duchess of Marlborough in the course of a speech delivered at Sunderland House, spoke of the splendid type of college-bred woman which America produced. Men had not found that college-bred girls make less devoted wives and mothers. If women were tactful enough not always to worst their husbands in argument and to keep any superabundance of knowledge up their sleeves there seemed to be little opposition on a husband's part to his wife being well educated. It was difficult to comprehend why there should be such rooted objection on the part of Englishmen to the higher education of their wives. There must be some secret fear that hard as they found it to understand a woman now, it would be absolutely beyond their ken were she highly educated.

REVENUE OFFICERS AND RYOTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—I have read with interest your remarks on the Report of the Director of Land Records. The complaint therein made regarding the indifference of the lower Revenue officials including the Mamlatdars is unfortunately too true. The Mamlatdars of the old type who, though they had not passed examinations, were really hard-working conscientious officials, have passed away and have been succeeded by men most of whom think that they are not born or destined to work hard, that it is their prerogative to make the most of the powers wielded by them and to take as little trouble as possible. The Mamlatdar's Karkuns and the Circle Inspectors and the Talatis, with a few exceptions, think that there is nobody to call them to account, and that they can lord it over the poor ryots with impunity. There are only a few conscientious officers who patiently listen to the complaints of the ryots; the remedy lies in the Assistant Collectors themselves examining the records of the subordinate officials as Mr. Pratt himself used to do, and coming down sharply upon those found guilty of superficial enquiry, or of neglect of duty. How many 'tumars' remain unanswered by the Talatis and Patels! Yours, etc.,

REVENUE OFFICIAL.

"THE GOLDEN AGE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—I beg to draw your kind-hearted readers' attention to a very excellent English society called The Order of the Golden Age, 153-155, Brompton Road, London, S. W. It aims at freeing mankind from disease, drunkenness, poverty and criminal tendencies, and the animal creation from various diabolical cruelties suffered by them at present in railway trains, cattle boats, markets and slaughter-houses.

Among its most enthusiastic supporters are Sir William E. Cooper, C. I. E., the Rev. A. M. Mitchell, M. A., Dr. Josiah Oldfield, D. C. L., M. A., L.R.C.P., M.R.C.S., Capt. Walter Carey, R. N., and Dr. Robert Bell, M.D., F.F.P.S.

I have personally seen and talked with Mr. Sidney H. Beard, the founder and president of the above mentioned Society, and at that time I felt that I was in the sacred presence of a great Englishman whose one ambition in life is the salvation of the world from pain and misery.

In conclusion I pray that Indian humanitarians of all communities may kindly study the work of the Order of the Golden Age, and become its active members.—Yours, etc.,

LABHSHUNKAR LAXMIDAS.

PRISON REFORM AT HOME.

LECTURES AND CONCERTS FOR CONVICTS.

Ticket of Leave System to be Abolished.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, JULY 21.

Speaking in the House of Commons, Mr. Churchill forecasted a Bill, allowing persons with fixed abodes time to pay fines instead of immediate committal in default. It should, he said, be the first care of the Home Secretary to prevent people getting into prison at all. A system was being considered, whereby youths convicted of rowdyism and boisterousness should instead of being imprisoned, undergo some form of corrective physical instruction. He had given instructions that people imprisoned as passive resisters or suffragists should be relieved of unnecessary degradation. As regards general prisoners, lectures and concerts would be provided four times yearly. The system of ticket of leave would be ended, and charitable societies and not the police would undertake the supervision required. He mentioned that the King on his accession had struck off five hundred years' imprisonment in the cases of eleven thousand persons.

MILK AND BUTTER SUPPLY.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

ALLAHABAD, JULY 21.

A resolution, on the conditions under which milk and butter is produced, by the U. P. Government, deals with the recommendations made by the Cattle Conference held at Naini Tal in August last, when a suggestion was made, that municipal enterprise might be directed towards effecting some reform. The Conference proposed that the municipalities should provide pasturage facilities out of the municipal funds if need be, and that they should encourage private dairies by giving pasturage facilities at cost price. The Lieut. Governor sees no harm in the Municipal Boards providing general grazing grounds, where such grounds are not readily available, for which fees should be charged, but His Honour thinks that charges of favouritism might be raised if special facilities were given to any particular dairy companies. A further recommendation was, that railways should give favourable rates and special facilities for the transport of milk, and private association near the railway stations for the supply of milk by rail should be encouraged. This the Lieutenant-Governor regards as a more hopeful solution of the difficulty, rather than the encouragement of the milk production within municipal limits. The railway freight rates are so high at present, as to be prohibitive for such traffic, and His Honour is going to approach the Railway Board with the object of concessions being granted for milk carriage.

EASTERN BENGAL WATERWAYS.

Improvement Scheme.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

ALLAHABAD, JULY 21.

Improving of the waterways of Eastern Bengal and Assam, has been occupying attention for some time past. Mr. White, the Superintending Engineer, placed on special duty in this matter, has submitted a preliminary report, which forms the basis of a programme of improvements which will be carried out as projects are prepared and funds are available for the works. For 1910-11 over one lakh is provided and this will be used to cover subsidies to steamer companies for dredging operations and for spur work on the Burigauga and Dhalesari rivers, on Karnafuli near Rangamati, and on Upper Bramaputra near Dibrugarh, and for removing obstructions in some of the navigable rivers in Upper Assam.

ANOTHER PASTEUR INSTITUTE.

Proposed for Eastern Bengal.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

ALLAHABAD, JULY 21.

For the proposed establishment of a Pasteur Institute in Eastern Bengal and Assam, the Government have written to the Assam Branch of the Indian Tea Association. The scheme would have to be approved by a Financial Committee, and depends upon the amount of public support, both in contributions for maintenance, and first cost. The Tea Association was asked to report, what amounts would be forthcoming from members of the commercial bodies and private firms in Calcutta. When this information is forthcoming, the Lieutenant Governor will consider whether it is practicable to proceed further in the matter.

PROPOSED FLOATING POLICE-STATIONS.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

ALLAHABAD, JULY 21.

In face of the constant occurrences of boat dacoits and robberies under arms in the waterways of Eastern Bengal the Government is taking steps to organize a special police force for river work, and has set aside two lakhs for expenditure this year. It is proposed to establish floating police-stations at carefully selected points along the river and channels, with patrol vessels with defined areas of operation, over which they will constantly travel. During the rainy season, large sums of money will be despatched from place to place to finance the jute industry, and special temporary arrangements will be there for protecting these.

THE BOARD OF FORESTRY.

Programme of Research Work.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

SIMLA, JULY 21.

The proceedings of the Board of Forestry held at Dehra Dun between 31st March and 6th April last, has been published, when the triennial programme of the research work for the period 1910 to 1913 was adopted. This embraces a large variety of subjects including certain matters connected with sal trees, investigations into the best method of cutting and working samboos, cultivation of trees for the growth of lac, the study of teak and of fungoid diseases affecting blue pine in the Punjab and casuarina in Madras, also of spike disease of sandal in Madras. The interesting enquiries by the Forest Economist will be undertaken into grass pulp for paper-making purposes. He will also report upon the sites of factories and financial prospect of business.

Among other matters, he will keep under observation and encourage the match business in India which is already started but which is still not firmly established; carry out investigations regarding wood suitable for (1) packing cases, (2) boxes, (3) opium chests, (4) paving blocks, (5) railway-stock, (6) carriage building, (7) harbour construction, (8) other miscellaneous purposes such as pencils, pipes, hair brushes, fishing-rods, etc., and also make an inquiry into the subject of useful fibres.

The Board strongly urged for the formation of a separate Imperial cadre for the Imperial Forest Research Institute and College on the lines similar to those of a cadre of a province. In the opinion of this Board it is desirable that (1) a separate cadre be formed for the Research Institute and College on the lines similar to those of the cadre of a province with allowance for leave vacancies; (2) once officers join this cadre and prove suitable for research or educational work their services should, as a rule, be retained on it for the greater part of it, if not their entire service; the Officers of the Forest service should be paid their incremental pay with local allowance until such time as any officer below them on the general list is appointed substantively or temporarily to the administrative grades and they should then be granted the pay of such officer with or without local allowance; (3) the owners on this cadre who are employed as instructors should be encouraged at the same time to take up some special branch of research so that they may qualify themselves to replace at least temporarily the research officer in this branch: (4) this cadre should be recruited: (a) by transfer from provincial cadres, (b) direct appointment of experts who are not members of the Forest Department on average pay which would generally be lower than that of the officers of the Forest Department and which would thus be a certain set off against the additional expenditure entailed by the proposal that the Forest officers on the new cadre should draw the pay of administrative grades on their seniority and efficiency rendering them eligible for such. On the question of necessity for an Agent in England to answer enquiries regarding Indian forest products, to receive samples of timbers, etc. and to generally push trade in forest products. The Board are of opinion that the appointment of an Agent in England is desirable and that he might be paid partly by commission on the results obtained. The Agent should be in close touch with the Imperial Forest Economist. Among other questions discussed were the standardisation of tree measurements, the Research Institute publication, the inclusion of the Divisional Forest Officers into the Board of Forestry and the holding of the next session of the Board.

Mr. Clutterbuck suggested a number of subjects suitable for discussion and proposed that the Conference be held at Allahabad between December 1910 and February 1911, during which the United Provinces Exhibition will be open. After discussing the proposal it was agreed that the time has hardly come for a General Conference of Forest Officers. It was resolved:—"That a large number of subjects have been discussed by the present Board and it is considered advisable to wait some time before inviting Forest Officers to attend such a Conference as that suggested."

SOUTH INDIAN INDUSTRIALS.

Reduction of Capital Sanctioned.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

MADRAS, JULY 21.

Before the Chief Justice in the High Court today, on behalf of the South Indian Industrials, Limited and Reduced, Mr. C. F. Napier moved for an order confirming the resolution passed at an extraordinary general meeting on 12th April last that the Company be reduced from Rs. 50 lakhs to Rs. 33 lakhs and that such a reduction be effected by cancelling the paid up capital which had been lost or was unrepresented by the available assets to the extent of Rs. 80 per share on each ordinary share, reducing the normal amount of ordinary shares from Rs. 100 to Rs. 20 each, so that the Company could start on a dividend-paying basis. Sir Henry King intimated that he represented the debenture-holders under a power of attorney.

Mr. Napier said that the property of the Company had been revalued on several occasions and that there was an affidavit giving the correct valuation of assets. The whole capital having been paid up there were no funds against which the creditors could come in the outside ordinary assets of the Company, therefore the creditors would not be affected in any way. He added that Sir Henry King on behalf of the debenture-holders (Rs. 30,000 by Miss Arbuthnot and Rs. 7 lakhs by Messrs. Arbuthnot Latham and Co.) consented to the reduction as did also Mr. Hajee Ismail Sait and Messrs. Haji Fakir Mahomed Sait and Sons to whom the Company was indebted to the extent of Rs. 12 lakhs. That would dispose of an enormous majority of the creditors. Other creditors fell under two classes, viz., security deposits of employes and ordinary trade creditors whose claims amounted to about Rs. 25,000. These creditors had no right to object, and Counsel, therefore, prayed that an order might be made under section 17 of the Indian Companies Act.

His Lordship made an order as prayed for confirming the resolution.

CHAT ABOUT BOOKS.

Messrs. A. and C. Black, who were the pioneers of the colour-book in its popular form are about to issue a new series of these topographical monographs, dealing with the beauties and antiquities of Russia. The first volume is a description of St. Petersburg, written by Mr. G Dobson, with a large number of beautiful and characteristic colour-picture by Mr. F. de Haenen. Other volumes in the series will be announced very shortly.

The Valley of Aosta is one of the beauty spots of the world, as much admired for its historical associations as for its exquisite natural feature. Every side of its charm is, we are assured, to be treated in a work, announced by Messrs. G. P. Putnam's Sons, entitled, "The Valley of Aosta," and written by Mr. Felice Ferrero. The author is a brother of Guglielmo Ferrero, the distinguished author of "The Greatness and Decline of Rome," which Mr. Heinemann recently published with such remarkable success. The present book is founded upon laborious research, but hope, to wear its learning with a light heart, and touch the human even more than the academic aspect of its attractive theme.

Sir Horace Plunkett, whose labours on behalf of Irish agriculture are universally recognised, has an equal knowledge of rural conditions in the United States, where he owns an extensive ranch, upon which he has been accustomed to spend a certain amount of time in every year. His experience of the advantages and drawbacks of American agricultural life has suggested the publication of a book of essays upon the subject, which Messrs. Macmillan and Co. expect to have ready before the summer seasons run to a close. The book is to be called "The Rural Life Problem in the United States," and the evidence supplied will have obvious reference to the state of agriculture in our own country, and in Ireland as well.

It is characteristic of the thoroughness which marks the undertakings of Messrs. Smith, Elder and Co. that the Dictionary of National Biography is not to be allowed to lie fallow. That large and increasing public, which sets its proper value upon this fine literary Valhalla of English life and character, will learn with satisfaction that Mr. Sidney Lee is once more in his editorial chair in Waterloo-place, and that a further supplement of three volumes will soon be in active preparation. The lamented close of the Edwardian era has prompted this fresh addition to the already lengthy regiment of volumes and the record will now be increased, so as to include biographies of all the noteworthy people who died during the reign of the late King. Nearly two years will be required for the completion of the work, but early in 1912 it is hoped that the further instalment of the Dictionary will be in the hands of subscribers.

The abiding interest in the English Civil War is continually emerging in fresh literary ventures, and local historians were never busier in hunting up the traditions of their district with regard to the great struggle between King and Parliament. An important addition to this kind of literature will be published by the Chiswick Press during the course of August, the author being Mr. Charles Thomas-Stanford, vice-chairman of the council of the Sussex Archæological Society. His book is to be called "Sussex in the Civil War and the Interregnum (1642-1660)," and the learned author has gone direct to local documents for the new material which he hopes to make accessible. A chapter is given to the siege of Arundel, and another to the position of the Royalist landlords during the war, while much interest will be centred in the graphic account of the sufferings of the clergy under the Revolution. The work will be fully illustrated, and will contain a complete series of maps.

"The Story of the Oar" (Horace Cox, 1s) is the title which Lord Desborough gives to a lecture delivered by him to the Philosophical Institution of Edinburgh last February, and now reprinted as a convenient handbook from the report issued in the "Field." Lord Desborough, whom his Oxford friends knew as W. H. Grenfell of Balliol, is an acknowledged authority on all matters connected with rowing and has been himself a doughty champion of the oar. His lecture is a very interesting history of the gradual development of rowing-boats. He especially concerns himself with the ancient specimens, which come down to us in sculpture and bas-reliefs from Egypt, Phœnicia, Greece, and Rome, and his reconstruction of the trireme after the models of Dr. Warre and German commentators, is an admirable piece of historical criticism. The whole lecture is a valuable study of ancient documents, written in an easy and popular style.

Lord Coleridge has written a very suggestive appeal on behalf of the Poetry Society, of which he is president. Lord Coleridge reminds us that the society has been founded "to nourish the love of poetry in the heart of man," and also to promote a more general recognition and appreciation of poetry by encouraging the public and private reading of it. In short, it is an effort to stimulate the imaginative faculty in the nation. Its success must depend upon the support it receives, and Lord Coleridge now pleads for a wider recognition of aims so healthy and beneficent. The present contribution necessary to establish the donor as an ordinary member, is no more than 5s a year; for honorary members the annual subscription is a guinea, and the payment of a lump sum of ten guineas constitutes the giver a life member of the society. Great encouragement has been received from the Colonies, and many local gatherings have been held, where poetry has been recited and the principles of the poetic art have been discussed. We feel sure that support will not be wanting to make the movement a complete success.

The splendid volumes which Mr. Philip Lee-Warner has been producing for the Medici-Society have constituted one of the most encouraging features in recent publishing. So long as books so thoroughly well equipped are properly appreciated, it is vain to pretend that the demand for cheap books has entirely destroyed the love of cultured people for cultered and dignified production. Mr. Lee-Warner has now in contemplation what is likely to prove one of the most valuable of his undertakings This is a new translation of Vasari's "Lives of the Painters," a special feature of which will be the elaborate series of illustrations, some in colour, and some in half-tone, representing the best work of the various artists discussed. It is unnecessary to emphasise the scope which this particular work gives for illustration of this kind, and the ten handsome volumes of which the edition is to consist should prove an invaluable reinforcement to the bookshelves of the true book-lover.

THE PUNISHMENT OF CRIMINALS.

Standardising Criminal Sentences.

BY way of supplement to the convict's bitter indictment of imprisonment, upon which we made some comments, a short time ago, Dr. Whitby publishes an article in the "Hibbert Journal," the purport of which is to find an answer to the question, Is punishment a crime? While the general drift of the Doctor's argument is against the principle of our present system, he misses the fundamental points of the true problem. His chief position is that many criminals are altogether, or partially irresponsible; it is therefore unjust to punish them. Such instances, as he gives, of extreme cases, are already provided for by the criminal law. Judges and juries are only too ready to listen to a plea of insanity; and if Dr. Whitby could satisfy them of the truth of his facts, no court would convict. When he deals with the weak minded, or as their fellow prisoners in every gaol call them "Balmies"—and the percentage appears to be about 20 to the hundred in large jails—his case is not clear. It appears that he leans to the view that medical treatment, and not punishment is needed in their cases, as well as in dealing with men who commit crime in a state of complete irresponsibility. But he does not appear to see the real difficulty, which lies in answering the radical question whether we ought to "punish" crime at all? We put forward a principle, for the consideration of thinking men when we last dealt with this subject, that the criminal courts should be confined to eliminating the incorrigible criminal altogether: while the casual criminal should be made to make compensation, where that is possible, or should not be punished at all. Obviously there are a hundred, may be a thousand objections, hinging chiefly on details, which might and ought to be advanced, before adopting so radical and revolutionary a principle. Nevertheless, could, we depend upon science, the science of the future, to detect infallibly the born criminal, most of the more obvious difficulties would be swept away. For when a born criminal has once committed a crime, it would be certain that he would, on release, from incarceration, commit another; just as the tamed, or half-tamed wild animal, once it has tasted blood can never be trusted again. Note that the born criminal is not convicted merely because he is a born criminal, we do not advocate submitting the entire population to the scientific experts of psychophysical criminology, on a "quia timet" principle. It is always possible that a man born with the criminal tendency may succeed in controlling it. It is only when he has failed to do so, and has once given it a free rein, that the aid of science should be invoked, and the courts assured that he is virtually irreclaimable, and had better be at once eliminated. All actual experience points the same way. The manner in which our judges deal with habituals, is a grave reflection on the inability of Society to grasp a perfectly plain principle. For, while, the judges themselves fail to give effect to it in practice, they merely exemplify the generally diffused cloudiness of thought, and the infection of sentiment, which prevents the very simple basic truth being clearly seen. Every one remembers that so acute a mind as Mr. Labouchere, frequently devoted his pillory to vehement denunciations of judges who had inflicted very heavy sentences for very trivial offences, because the offenders were shown to be habituals. The judges were perfectly right, and Mr. Labouchere was entirely wrong. His confusion of thought, like that of almost everybody who thinks about this subject at all, is rooted in the primitive feeling that sentences are the punishment of the crime.

If we turn to the latest example, the report on the Bombay Jails, we find the same irritating want of clarity. The Inspector General calls peremptorily for more deterrent sentences on old offenders, and it would seem that the Government is in complete accord with his demand. It ought to be obvious to every one that the elimination of irreclaimables, has nothing to do with deterring those who are not yet criminals from following in their footsteps. It is as senseless to give an old offender ten or fourteen years for stealing for the tenth time, an umbrella, or a dhoti as it is to give him a week. The heavy sentence will no more deter him, or his congeners, who "ex-necessitate naturæ," will be thieves as long as they live and are at large, than the light. And as long as we allow our minds to dwell on the deterrent efficacy of heavy sentences, we shall be consciously or unconsciously committed to an acceptance of punishment as a proper motive for inflicting criminal sentences. Dr. Whitby is strongly, and we think rightly, opposed to allowing that motive any play at all. As soon as we analyze the popular concept of criminal sentences, we shall find that it contains three dominant motives, two of which are closely allied, and equally indefensible, the third, a mere canting salve of over tender consciences vaguely troubled at the gratification of ignoble and morally indefensible impulses.

First, the analysis reveals the persistence of man's primitive, we might almost in this humanitarian age call it, savage, desire for vengeance. If a man strikes you, your instinct is to hit him back. If you are unable to do this because he is stonger or better armed than yourself, you feel a sense of injury, and you appeal to more men like yourself, Society, to give you redress. Society through the mechanism of its courts, hits back and very much harder than you could hope to do. You are thus avenged on the wrong-doer. It is hardly necessary to point out that the greater number of citizens who tacitly accept and act upon this view, (although when coldly formulated they would probably repudiate it) are orthodox Christians. The fact that not only they but the whole body of the clergy, their spiritual teachers contentedly acquiesce, in a system of legalized vengeance—who doubts that a clergyman or even a Bishop, when assaulted or robbed would hesitate to set the law in motion? Is a curious commentary on a text often in their mouths, "Vengeance is mine saith the Lord"? We do not seek their alliance, it is enough to draw attention to this instance among many of a peculiarly glaring inconsistency. The controlling influence of religious professions counts for little, when they conflict wiih obstinate secular instincts. Second, and [illegible] way of softening the harshness of the [illegible] revenge, we unearth the fashionable and m[illegible] plausible motive of the need of deterring criminals from committing crimes. Ri[illegible] preciated this means that you will [illegible] punish A for stealing your purse, out of al[illegible] tion to the injury done, you, so that [illegible] be deterred from robbing your bank. [illegible] the one case the ineradicable instinct of pe[illegible] revenge, so here, the more sordid instin[illegible] protecting your property is the root of the mo[illegible] And what of the means? Could anything be mo[illegible] unjust, and practically more senseless, if there i[illegible] anything at all in the scientific explanation of crime? Punishing the relatively innocent for the possible future sins of others would hardly commend itself in cold blood to any just, fair-minded man. More particularly were he convinced, that the barbarity were predestined to failure, and would not deter those who cannot be deterred, because of the vice of their mentality. Third, we come in sight of the typical canting motive, that the object of punishment is the cure, or reformation of the offender. If those who talk and write so glibly upon this agreeable theme could produce a single victim of imprisonment who has been "cured" or "reformed" or even improved by ten years' penal servitude, we would go further to see and question him, than any Centaur, Phoenix or Mermaid. The notion is preposterous. No man ever yet has been, will be, or by any stretch of the imagination conceivably could be raised morally, by undergoing a servitude compared with which the worst forms of African slavery were humane, and pleasant. The prisoner sentenced to penal servitude, must for a time at least, neglecting the degrading physical and moral conditions, be treated far worse than any caged beast. Having thus got a clear view of the true contents of the notion of imprisonment for crime, the practical question presses insistently on philosophic humanity, what can be done? Is any remedy possible? No one who has devoted much real thought to the existing system can doubt that in many points it is radically bad. Nor is it likely to be bettered by merely conventional platitudes, dealing with the improvement of our jail system, the increased kindness with which prisoners are treated, its curative and educational uses. Let us have done with these silly phrases. If we are to punish at all, we do not want the punishment to be agreeable: if punishment is really to be a discipline, there must be no attendant disgrace, leaving an indelible stain on the character of the victim, and segregating him as a parish thenceforward from participation in healthy social life. Let us begin by asking whether we must or ought to punish at all?

It may be said that we answered that question in the affirmative, when we hazarded our general principle. Eliminate the unassimilable, but do not punish the casual criminal. Here it is well to be on guard against confounding the contents of these terms. It is one thing to protect yourself against violence, and quite another to punish. Nor does it necessarily follow that any system of punishing by anticipation, and vicariously, will provide the required protection. As to the right of Society to protect itself against violence, which is merely an extension of the right of the individual to protect his person, everyone will agree that it is necessary and indefeasible. The casuist may interpose that while the broad line of cleavage suggested accepts prophylactic punishment in the one case, the born criminal, it altogether refuses to consider it in the other, the casual criminal. But there is a plain difference. You do not punish the casual criminal, prophylactically at all, to prevent him repeating the offence, but in the hope that his sufferings, the example you make of him will deter others from doing what he has done. You do not punish the habitual criminal prophylactically, or in any real sense. You merely say "You are unassimilable and a recurring danger to society. We must cage you." In the former case it is truly prophylactic punishment and of a peculiarly hard and unjustifiable kind: in the latter case it is not punishment at all. The crucial difficulty confronts us when we have to consider questionable cases. As the verdict of science can hardly hope to attain apodeictic certitude, there will always be a chance of error. Thus the casual criminal may not display the characteristics of the born criminal with sufficient distinctness to warrant, the Law dealing with him as an irreclaimable. So that it might in practice be found necessary to provide specially for a repetition of crime by one who appeared to be merely a criminal of passion, or opportunity. It is premature yet to discuss ways and means of applying a principle which has to win acceptance. And broadly we still insist, that any real reform in our criminal system will have to proceed on a consistent principle, such as we have foreshadowed, or we shall go muddling along as we are doing now, enmeshed in a number of specious phrases, which fall so glibly and naturally from our tongues, that we do not think about them at all. Already as pointed out above experience points the way. Ninety per cent. of true recidivists, who are perpetually coming before the courts, and getting haphazard sentences, wasting public time and money, would be probably revealed under the stringent tests of science, as born, and incorrigible criminals. As such they would be eliminated once and for all; as it is, they are constantly re-appearing before the courts, and according to the moods of the judges, or their perspicacity, getting all sorts of useless sentences, seldom indeed going the true logical length of complete elimination. It is the opinion of one of the greatest English experts Sir R. Anderson, that were all habituals promptly and finally eliminated, the work of the police, and of the criminal courts would be reduced ninety per cent., while the gain in security to society would be proportionately great.

In this connexion a word or two may profitably be said on the urgent need of standardizing criminal sentences. Supposing Legislatures were prepared to go all the way with our suggested principle, this would become unnecessary; but there must be a long interval before any such revolution can be reasonably expected. In the meanwhile, a most desirable and simple reform deserves the attention of all practical legislators. Keeping awhile to the most effective case, that of recidivists, the existing practice of the courts is plainly obnoxious to the most trenchant attacks. While the Inspector General of Prisons and the Government, both appear to miss the philosophical basis and justification of their demand, it is clear that they are much more right than the judges. Every day all over the country our courts convict habituals, sent up under the special section meant to empower judges to eliminate them finally. Do they do it? It is pretty safe to say that in the High Courts they never do. Occasionally a mofussil judge with truer insight does. Then there is an appeal, and ten chances to one, illogicality triumphs over logic, and the sentence is cut down. Now it ought to be perfectly clear to everyone, and particularly superior judges, that a recidivist, is not being tried for the offence, which merely proves conclusively that he is incorrigible, but that he is being tried for his character, and if found guilty of being unassimilable ought to be ruthlessly eliminated. Not let us repeat ad nauseam as a punishment, not by way of deterring others, but simply because he is shown to be a danger to society, and unfit to live in society. And, speaking, generally, a system like that of the Indian Penal Code which gives judges the widest discretion as to the sentence they will inflict, is theoretically unsound. Half the time of our highest courts of appeal is taken up with altering sentences. Deep down in the heart of every judge of criminal appeal lies, however obscured, the ineradicable conviction, that he knows much better than the judge or magistrate below him, what is a fitting sentence. And allied with this is a natural clinging to the power which he feels himself able to exercise in the way of meting out "punishment." Nothing, however, ought to be plainer, than that no judge, merely as a judge, is likely to know better, than any other intelligent man what "punishment," best fits the crime. And it is a "reductio ad absurdum" when judges of appeal habitually interfere with sentences imposed by inferior judges and magistrates. We say a "reductio ad adsurdum," because this practice entirely ignores the true function of a judge, ascertaining in a judicial manner, whether or not a person accused by society of having done a particular act, has or has not done it. When that question is answered, the judge ought to feel that he is "functus officio," and he ought to be "functus officio." It is not for a judge, it is submitted, but for society to declare what its will is in the way of "punishing" any offence against itself. Lamentable though, in a philosophic sense, this attitude of society may appear to ardent reformers, it is the groundwork and foundation of all criminal law. Too complacently, however, society delegates its proper function, (possibly because it is more than a little ashamed of it) to its judges. So that they are in a position to "punish" a man whom they find to have committed a certain act with almost any degree of severity or lenity. The practical inconvenience and absurdity of this is, that sentences are tinkered with every day, in the most unscientific, happy go lucky spirit, the result as [illegible] as not depending upon the judge's mood of [illegible]t, and in hardly a single instance referable [illegible]ossibility whatever to sound general [illegible]

THE LATE KING.

[illegible] Highness the Thakor Saheb of Gondal has [illegible] the following letter to His Excellency the [illegible]nor of Bombay, dated, Gondal, 15th July:—

[illegible]Your Excellency,—I beg to associate myself most cordially with the movement started under your Chairmanship to perpetuate the honoured memory of all-beloved King Edward VII, Emperor of India, who ruled not merely over men but over hearts of men and left an example of what a Sovereign should be. We of this generation scarcely stand in need of a memorial to His late Majesty as the memory of the great and good Emperor is most suitably enshrined in the heart of every son and daughter of India. Still we owe it to those coming after us that something should be done to show them how deeply we in this Presidency loved and revered King Edward whose loss is mourned by the whole world, but by no country more than by India. As my tribute to the memory that I shall always cherish and revere, I beg to enclose a cheque for Rs. 5,000.

DISSOLUTION OF MARRIAGE

Decree Made Absolute.

On the Original Side of the Bombay High Court yesterday, Edith Catherine Millar nee Simms appeared in person before the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Robertson and applied that the decree nisi passed by the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Russell in January last for dissolution of marriage in the suit filed by her against her husband Herbert George Millar be made absolute.

The decree was asked for on the ground of desertion, cruelty and neglect on the part of the defendant. The parties were married in July 1895, and had three children, all of whom were alive. The defendant was last heard of as being in the Burma Police in 1903, after which all trace of him had been lost. Mr. Justice Russell passed a decree in favour of the petitioner with costs and custody of the children. His Lordship had further ordered the defendant to pay to the petitioner Rs. 150 per month for maintenance. Six months having expired after that decree was passed, the present application was made.

His Lordship made the decree absolute and dissolved the petitioner's marriage with the respondent.

TOBACCO MERCHANT'S CLAIM.

On the Original Side of the Bombay High Court, yesterday, the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Beaman disposed of the suit filed by Joshi Harjibhoy Mohanji and another against Bai Matubai and another in which the plaintiff prayed for a decree for Rs. 2,621 with interest and costs. The defendants had a tobacco shop at Duncan Road. The plaintiff's case was that they supplied goods to the defendants of which an account was made up in January 1910, which was signed and acknowledged.

Mr. Rustom D. N. Wadia, appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. F. Sorabji Talyerkhan for the defendants.

After recording evidence, his Lordship passed a decree for the plaintiffs with interest and costs.

DEATH SENTENCE COMMUTED.

On the Appellate Side of the Bombay High Court, yesterday, the Hon'ble Justice Sir Narayan G. Chandavarkar and the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Heaton disposed of the appeal of Khandoo Ganpat, who was convicted of murder by Mr. F. J. Varley, Sessions Judge of Khandesh, and sentenced to death.

Mr. A. G. Sathye, appeared for the accused, while the Government Pleader was for the Crown.

The accused was charged with the murder of his father Ganpat with an axe while Ganpat lay on his bed asleep on the morning of the 31st March last. The evidence against the accused was partly circumstantial and partly confessional. The alleged motive for the murder was that the deceased had kicked the accused on the night before the murder.

Disagreeing with the Assessors, the Sessions Judge convicted the accused and sentenced him to death.

After hearing the arguments, their Lordships confirmed the conviction but commuted the sentence to that of transportation for life.

GOVERNMENT APPEAL DISMISSED.

On the Appellate Side of the Bombay High Court, the Hon'ble Justice Sir Narayan G. Chandavarkar and the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Heaton disposed of the Government appeal against the order of acquittal passed by Mr. V. B. Sakhalkar, First Class Magistrate of Chiplun, in the case in which Zilshet Krishnashet Shetye and 11 others were charged with rioting.

Mr. R. M. A. Branson, instructed by Mr. R. W. Desai, appeared for the respondents; the Government Pleader was for the Crown and Mr. P. D. Bhide for the complainant.

The Government appeal was against the order of the acquittal of the first, second, fourth, sixth, seventh, eight and ninth accused. All the accused were charged with rioting during a procession at Chiplun. Some of the accused pleaded an alibi and the Magistrate believed that evidence. With regard to the other accused, according to the Magistrate, the evidence was not sufficient to warrant a conviction.

After hearing the arguments, their Lordships confirmed the Lower Court's order and dismissed the appeal.

POST OFFICE PROSECUTION.

On the Appellate Side of the Bombay High Court, yesterday, the Hon'ble Justice Sir Narayan G. Chandavarkar and the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Heaton disposed of the appeal of Damoo Munuswami, who was convicted of abstracting a currency note of Rs. 100 from a registered letter in the course of transmission by post by Mr. C. Roper, Sessions Judge of Poona, and sentenced to fifteen months' rigorous imprisonment. The accused who was a van peon abstracted the note which was afterwards found in his pocket by the head sorter. He had also made a confession and considering the evidence before him the Sessions Judge convicted the accused and sentenced him as above stated.

Their Lordships dismissed the appeal.

POLICE NEWS.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

European Youth Charged.

Yesterday, at the Mazagon Police Court, before Mr. P. H. Dastur, Second Presidency Magistrate, Superintendent Myers charged William George Tait, (19), an apprentice in the G. I. P. R. Workshops, with attempting to murder Patrick George Dale, (16), an inmate of the Y. M. C. A. Apprentice Home, Love Lane, Mazagon.

The complaint was that the accused and the injured man lived together in the Apprentice Home, whence the former was expelled last month. He believed that Dale was instrumental in getting him expelled and since that time they had not been on good terms. Tait, it is alleged, on Wednesday purchased a revolver and 50 rounds of ammunition from a shop in Abdul Rehman Street. He then went to the Bori Bunder Station and waited until midnight for Dale to come out. Tait then offered a lift to Dale who was in the company of another youth named White. After some reluctance the offer was accepted. White and Dale took their seats under the hood, and the accused sat on the small seat opposite. As soon as the gharry had started, Tait and Dale began to exchange high words which continued until the victoria turned into Love Lane, when the accused suddenly drew a loaded revolver and it is stated fired two shots at Dale. One shot lodged in his chest and the other passed through the left arm. On the report of the pistol, White jumped out of the gharry and ran away. Tait, it is alleged, tried to commit suicide by firing two more shots at himself, but failing in his aim, he jumped out of the gharry and went to his uncle's in Nesbit Lane. In the meantime Dale asked the gharrywalla to take him to the Apprentice's Home whence he was removed to the hospital. Tait went with his uncle to the Home and stated there that during a quarrel with Dale his pistol went off accidentally and Dale was hurt. Superintendent Meyers arrested him there. As Dale's condition was precarious Mr. Setalvad, Fourth Presidency Magistrate, was requested to take down his deposition and this was done, the accused being remanded.

The revolver has been recovered from an open drain with two full and four empty cartridges in it.

The bullet in Dale's chest had not been located yesterday afternoon and consequently had not been extracted.

ALLEGED SEDITION.

Yesterday, at the Esplanade Police Court, Mr. A. H. S. Aston, Chief Presidency Magistrate, resumed the hearing of the case, in which Mr. F. Vincent, Deputy Commissioner of Police, charged (1) Sadashiv Tambe, author of a Marathi book, called the "Varna Dharma Mimasa," or "A Treatise on Different Religions," (2) Ramji Krishnaji Rane, and (3) Sakharam Sitaram Vartak, under Sections 124A and 153A, with sedition and with promoting feelings of enmity between different classes of his Majesty's subjects. Mr. E. F. Nicholson, Public Prosecutor, appeared for the prosecution. Mr. Sathe, pleader, defended the second accused; and Mr. Solomon Moses, solicitor, defended the third accused.

Rajaram, a clerk in the Ganpat Krishnaji Press, cross-examined by Mr. Moses, said that in the pay abstract the third accused's name was entered as manager.

D. P. Vartak, examined by Mr. Moses, said the third accused had studied up to the third Marathi standard.

Mr. Moses, addressing the Court, said that the third accused could not be described as a printer within the meaning of the Printing and Registration of Books Act. According to this Act, the printer was the man who contracted with a publisher to print certain books. His client might have done, what was popularly called, the printer's work, that was setting the matter in type, etc. But that was not the printer contemplated in the Act. Besides, if he had been a printer his client's name would have appeared on the title page of the book as printer. His client was not aware of the contents of the book.

Mr. Nicholson, after dealing with the legal points raised by Mr. Moses, said the evidence showed that the third accused was the manager of the Press and the responsibility for the book coming out of that Press was his.

His Worship remarked that the book consisted of 239 pages. Supposing a book consisted of a thousand pages and these included an objectionable passage or two would that not rebut the presumption that he had read the whole book?

Mr. Nicholson submitted it would weaken but not rebut the presumption.

His Worship then asked the Court interpreter to read the first few pages.

After the interpreter had done this, his Worship said he would examine Mr. Oke to ascertain whether the general tenour of the book was such as would have given the third accused an idea that the book contained seditious passages.

His Worship: Are there any allusions up to page 56 which refer to any particular race or class?

Witness: No; I do not think there are.

Mr. Nicholson: Are there any other passages, besides those put in, which are seditious?

Witness: No.

Mr. Nicholson then examined the witness to show that the book included passages containing innendoes against the Government.

Further hearing was adjourned.

POSSESSING COCAINE WITHOUT A LICENSE.

Yesterday, at the Esplanade Police Court, Mr. A. H. S. Aston, Chief Presidency Magistrate, disposed of the case, in which Inspector Lewis charged Maluk Mia Jasu Mia, a Mahomedan, with being in possession of 2,230 grains of cocaine without a license. Mr. Frank Oliviera, pleader, defended the accused. The facts of the case have already been reported. His Worship convicted the accused. As he had one previous conviction against him, the accused was sentenced to pay a fine of Rs. 200, or in default, to undergo two months' simple imprisonment.

PARIS SOCIALIST RIOT.

Dangerous Elements at Work.

Seldom, if ever, has the complex aspect of Paris been more strikingly demonstrated than last night, when, writes a Paris correspondent on June 27, police and military were called upon to engage in a hand-to-hand conflict with disorderly Socialists. At the very moment that fashionable Paris was feting the King and Queen of Bulgaria, those who have declared war upon monarchy were engaged in a monster demonstration against the police. The extraordinary scenes which took place in the Faubourg St. Antoine and again near the Porte de Flandre, when cavalry had to be requisitioned to charge the demonstrators, and the roadway was strewn with wounded, will be better understood when I state that Liabeuf, the young "apache" under sentence of death for the deliberate murder of a policeman is now awaiting the final decision on his fate by President Fallieres. It is not usual to carry out capital sentences whilst royal visitors are within the gates of Paris, and therefore several days have passed in suspense for Liabeuf and his friends. There can be little doubt that the demonstration was intended to influence, not to say terrorise, the mind of the President, but after the turbulent scenes then witnessed there seems just ground for giving a salutary example to the enemies of order and "police hunters," as they call themselves.

The funeral of the workman, Clerc, who was injured—it has never been discovered how or by whom a fortnight ago in a collision between police and strikers, was only the pretext for the demonstration. When, five or six days ago, the man was sent to the hospital, and died after being trepanned, his death was immediately called a "police crime," and the federation to which the deceased belonged issued a notice calling on all "comrades" to be present at the demonstration organised at the Pantain cemetery for the funeral of one "assassinated in a cowardly way by the police." The appeal met with a ready response, and more than 10,000 working men and "apaches" assembled in the Faubourg St. Antoine with red flags and banners—quickly causing all the shops and cafes to put up their shutters. The coffin was covered with wreaths of red flowers and immortelles dyed red, and the dead man's two sons, who are in the army, were in uniform as chief mourners. Nothing, in short, that could excite popular passion and prejudice was left undone. As the procession moved along past a shop where a lock-out had been lately proclaimed the militants broke all the windows and on the police who had not hitherto interferred remonstrating, they were saluted with fire revolver shots, and one of them was slightly wounded. At the next police station they came to the crowd, broke the windows and attacked the police with cries of "Assassins!" "Death to the flics" (police) "Vive la Commune!"

MALTREATING THE POLICE.

From this point onward the procession continued to throw stones and break the windows of unpopular employers of labour, and to chase and maltreat every policeman it met. After shooting at one gendarme quietly seated on the roof of a tramcar and forcing him to take refuge in flight, a regular pursuit of every policeman seen was organised. By the time the cemetery was reached, the crowd numbered nearly 20,000, only about a fourth of whom, however, were able to enter. A number of revolutionary Socialist orators then proceeded to deliver speeches at the graveside, appealing to the worst passions of their hearers and conjuring them to revolt against law and order, and resort to the uttermost extremes of violence. The orders given by the authorities being not to intervene except in case of a general riot, these exhortations were permitted to pass, and the police listened impassively to invitations to murder every one of their cloth. It was late before the demonstrators began to disperse, and nine o'clock had struck when they reached Paris again. Here they were met by a strong force of gendarmerie, backed by dragoons and mounted Municipal Guards. MM. Laurent and Touny, chief inspectors of police, summoned the leader to furl their flags, but being greeted with jeer and abuse, they ordered the buglers to sound the "disperse" three times.

The trumpets blared out the signal thrice in rapid succession, were responded to by imprecations and abuse, and then the police charged at a run, followed by the cavalry. The crowd did not attempt to make any resolute stand, and after firing a few revolver shots fled in all directions before the dragoons, who had drawn their sabres and rode backwards and forwards, using the flats of their weapons with little hesitation. By ten o'clock quiet was restored.

IN LIGHTER VEIN.

SMART IDEA.

Some little time ago an Irishman was being shown the enormous saving he could make if he used a certain kind of stove.

"Take this one," said the dealer, "and you will save at least half your coal."

"Begorra," was the reply, "then I'll take a couple and save the lot!"

HE FOLLOWED INSTRUCTIONS.

"Now," said the father, as he and his children sat at supper, "always remember this maxim—'Whatever your hands find to do, do it with all your might.'"

Soon after, a scream was heard under the table, and the father enquired what was the matter with the cat.

"Oh," said little Jim, "It's on'y me, farder. I found him's tail, and I pulled it wid all my might."

WHAT TOMMY THOUGHT.

A teacher in a country town is fervidly patriotic. One day, in class, while in a particularly uplifted mood after giving a stirring history lesson, he turned to a pupil, a lad of twelve—

"Now, Tommy," said he impressively, "tell me what you would think if you saw the Union Jack waving proudly over the field of battle.

"I should think," replied Tommy, "that the wind was blowing."

KNEW ALL ABOUT IT.

He was out with his best girl, and as they strolled into the West-End restaurant he tried to put on an I-do-this-every-evening kind of look.

When they were seated at a table a waiter approached them.

"Will monsiur have a la carte of table d'hote?" he asked.

"Both," said the young man, "and put plenty of gravy on 'em."

THE FIRST TO ARRIVE.

The mother of three little boys, who had gone to the country to spend Christmas week, had said she would send a shilling to the one who wrote first.

She received the following postcard from the eldest:—

"Dear Mother—I wanted to be the first to write to you, so wrote this before I left home, and will post it when we reach Elmford. We are all well. Excuse the writing, because you keep coming into the room.—Your loving son, Herbert."

HE'D EARNED IT.

A certain lawyer was a candidate for municipal honors recently. Whilst out canvassing he knocked at a cottage door, which was opened by a woman.

"Is your husband in, Mrs. Blank?" enquired the lawyer.

"No, sir," was the reply, "but I know what you want. My husband is sure to vote for you, because you got him off for stealing that ham last week."

"No, no; alleged stealing of the ham," corrected the lawyer.

"Alleged, be blowed!" was the woman's smiling answer. "Why, we've got a bit of it left now; lemme give you a sandwich out of it, sir."

A FALSE START.

It was round No. 17. The two pugilists looked like drowned rats.

The referee held up his hand.

"Them last two rounds don't count!" he announced hoarsely. "The fight will have to start all over again!"

A low growl ran through the vast assembly.

"Wot's the trouble?" roared a fiery-faced individual in the tenth row.

"The trouble is" explained the referee, "that the moving picture man has struck a bad spot in his film, and the pictures are no good. Are you ready up there, professor? All right! Shake hands, boys! On my right we have—"

QUITE RIGHT.

The minister was addessing the Sunday-school.

"Children, I want to talk to you for a few moments about one of the most wonderful, one of the most important, organs in the whole world," he said. "What is it that throbs away, beats away, never stopping, never ceasing, whether you wake or sleep, night or day, week in and week out, month in and month out, year in and year out, without any volition on your part, hidden away in the depths, as it were, unseen by you, throbbing, throbbing, throbbing, rhythmically all your life long?"

During this pause for oratorical effect a smal voice was heard—

"I know. It's the gas meter."

A DISTINCTION.

The other day a lady, when engaging a new servant, said,

"Remember, Martha, I will have no loafers about the place."

"All right, ma'am," said Martha.

A few days later Martha was wanted, but was at the back gate with a young man.

The mistress said,

"Who was with you?"

"Only my young man," said Martha proudly.

"How dare you disobey my orders? I said plainly no followers allowed."

"Beg pardon, ma'am, but you said loafers, and he's not a loafer—he's a biscuit hand, he is."

THEIR HONOR.

"Some men," said Andrew Carnegie once "have very queer ideas of honor.

"I was on a long journey in the smoking compartment of a Pullman. There were perhaps six of us in the compartment, smoking and reading.

"All of a sudden a door banged and the conductor's voice cried, 'All tickets, please!'

"Then one of the men in the compartment leaped to his feet, scanned the faces of the rest of us and said slowly and impressively, 'Gentlemen I trust to your honor.'

"And he dived under the seat and remained there in a small, silent knot till the conductor was safely gone."

"AU REVOIR—MONSIEUR."

A French music hall artist, noted both for his sharp temper and his wit, recently had a dispute with a tradesman in a town where he was performing. The tradesman summoned him to appear before the Juge de Paix.

Having called the tradesman a "pig," the actor was ordered to pay a fine of twelve shillings. He turned to the judge, smiling.

"So it's forbidden to call a man a pig?"

"Certainly," replied the judge.

"Is it forbidden to call a pig monsieur?"

"Well," answered the embarrassed judge, "I don't think the law has made any provision for such a case."

"Thank you," replied the actor.

Then, turning to the plaintiff, he bowed very low and said:—

"Au revoir, monsieur."

LOVE'S TEST.

The parlormaid entered Miss Ariline's dressing-room as that young lady sat before the glass putting on the last few dabs of powder.

"Oh, Miss Ariline," she said, "both them young gents you're engaged to are in the drawing-room, and they seem to have found out as you've been false to both, and it looks as if there's going to be a row."

"Goodness me, Matilda," exclaimed the started fair one, "whatever shall I do?"

Matilda thought for a moment, and then answered—"I know, miss. I'll go and tell them you're crying your eyes out because your father's lost all his money and you'll know then that the one who stays really loves you, and he will be the one to marry."

Matilda departed and in a short time returned with a blank look on her face.

"Well," enquired the young lady eagerly—"which?"

"Please, miss," returned the maid, "they've both bolted."

THE LADIES' CORNER.

LARGE HATS.

More than ever large hats are being worn, writes a Paris correspondent, the large shady variety of supple straw or crinoline, which falls well over the face and shades it from the sun. All these hats are simply trimmed with a wreath of roses or perhaps just one or two flowers posed lightly at either side. Long velvet strings are again being used on these large hats, and they are so soft and becoming that it is no wonder. But the hat which is worn almost exclusively for smart occasions by all those who can afford it (and they are so expensive that it is not everybody who can) is the supple Italian straw or Tagal trimmed with masses of ostrich feathers to match the rest of the costume. The feathers have very long silky fronds which droop gracefully over the hat, but there is always one placed upright, and the ends hang either at the back or on the right side. A charming hat which will be worn is of "souris" straw with a huge cascade of curled aigrettes of the same tone covering the whole of it. It is lined with old blue satin. But all these large hats have not quite ousted the quaint little draped toques of satin or lace, with a straight upstanding bunch of feathers as the sole trimming. They are so suitable to piquante young faces that we are bound to see them still for some time to come. Not a few of our Paris actresses have adopted them.

FRILLS.

We have been threatened with frills for a couple of seasons without the threat being carried out. But nevertheless we are to wear them this summer on our embroidery frocks. And very pretty they can be made, too! Here is one which is as dainty as can be. Made of finest white linen, it flows out well over the feet in a fluted skirt cut very tight over the hips. The bodice is trimmed with two long widths of insertion brought over the bust in a fichu, then over the shoulders in a graceful sweep, and fastened lightly on each side so as not to define the waist, and then falling over the skirt to the knees. The skirt is trimmed with three frills of this insertion edged with Valenciennes lace slightly shaped at the top so as to avoid any clumsiness. Under each frill, through the pattern of the insertion, gleams satin bands of palest pink which are sewn on to the skirt quite plain. A large pink rose fastened at the waist puts a smart finishing touch to a frock which could be worn at the races or a garden party by either a young girl or a woman well on into the thirties. Suede, either black or coloured, is the correct thing for day shoes. Of course, when they are coloured they must match the costume, and then the stockings must match exactly. Nothing is more displeasing to the artistic eye than the sight of stockings which are supposed to match being one or even two shades lighter or darker than the shoes. They should be discarded when they lose their colour in the wash. This may sound extravagant, but coloured stockings are an extravagance, and it is well to know this before setting out to buy them.

DAINTY SHOES.

Boots are almost discarded, for when suede shoes are not worn they are replaced, even in rainy weather, by dainty shoes of black varnished leather with black ribbon as laces tied in a large bow on the instep or finished with a fancy buckle. The more stylish of these varnished shoes have four or five narrow straps which cover the instep with tiny little "strass" buckles in the middle of each. They have an insertion of elastic at the sides, so that they can be slipped on and off, for the straps are not made to unfasten. For evening wear the heels are a trifle lower, and the shoe in more luxurious than ever. It is made of all manner of rich materials, with large fancy buckles, often studded with real stones, set in a rosette of ribbon. They must, of course, match the general tone of the toilette. A new style is to veil the satin shoe with Chantilly lace or to have it embroidered in maillettes or small beads.

SHOCKING ECZEMA FROM A PIMPLE

Seemed Insignificant but Soon Baby was in Terrible Condition—Scratched and Cried with Pain—Mother Feared He Would Die.

WHOLLY CURED BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"My baby was three weeks old when he had eczema on his face. It was a little pimple at first and we did not take any notice of it until he scratched it and made it bleed. The next morning it came on his face worse and I took him to the Hospital and they told me it was eczema, but it was nothing to be afraid of and they gave me a note to take to the chemist to buy a box of ointment. But it did him no good, in fact the eczema came over his arms and shoulders and I thought he was going to have it all over his body. So we took him to the hospital again and they told me to still use the ointment and to tie his hands at night, but it did not do a bit of good. I gave up all hopes of him ever getting better, in fact I thought it would take him to his grave.

"The appearance of the complaint was like a big hole on my baby's forehead which would run with matter and blood every time he scratched it. On his arms his little shirt would be stuck to the flesh and he would cry with the pain. He would try to get his hands free and rub them against his head. At last I got some Cuticura Ointment and after using it I said to my husband, 'What do you think of his arms and shoulders now?' and he said to me that they were getting along splendidly, so I told him what I had used and he went and bought some more Cuticura Ointment and some Cuticura Soap. The trouble has left him and it is now three months since we left off with the Cuticura Remedies. Mrs. J. Hill, 20, Second St., First Ave., Camel's Head, Devonport, Devon, Eng., Aug. 2 and 22, 1909."

A POPULAR CARTOONIST.

The death of Mr. John James Proctor, the well-known black-and-white artist, reminds us that his father still survives. Mr. John Proctor was a very popular cartoonist, and his "John Bull" was a fine type with which a previous generation grew familiar. Week by week Mr. Proctor, senior, drew political cartoons in the days when Gladstone and Beaconsfield were the chief protagonists. Mr. Proctor used to say how fortunate the cartoonists of the mid-Victorian era were in having the striking physiognomy of Mr. Gladstone and Disraeli to suggest subjects. The late Mr. J. J. Proctor had latterly drawn cartoons in the "Globe." He was fifty years old.

"THE WILDERNESS."

Among the anthems by Wisley to be sang the Samuel Sebastian Wesley Commemoration service at Westminster Abbey was "The Wilderness," a splendid example of English Church music, which Wesley submitted for the judgment of the adjudicators in the first competition for the Gresham Medal, which was, however, awarded to an anthem by Goss. The adjudicators were not impressed by this now famous composition. The reason given for rejecting the anthem, which has for many years had permanent place in cathedral choir lists, was that it was not cathedral music. For nearly a decade Wesley searched in vain for a publisher who would accept "The Wilderness," and finally printed it at his own expense.

THE BISHOP AND THE PUGILIST.

When Bishop Goe, whose death is announced, was a curate, a famous pugilist in the parish, who went by the name of Jim the Slogger, and who had never darkened a church door, called at the parsonage, asking him to baptize the baby. Accordingly the bishop repaired to Jim's house, but was surprised, on being admitted, to see Jim lock the door and pocket the key. "Be you the parson came to sprinkle my kid?" he asked. On the bishop assenting he continued, "Yer can't sprinkle that kid till you and me has had a fight, parson." The unfortunate parson protested, but, finding protest useless, "stood up" to Jim. The battle went for the bishop, and Jim, pulling himself from the floor, muttered, "He's the parson for me." The baptism was proceeded with, and, as the story goes, Jim took to church-going from that day.

COST OF LIVING IN AMERICA.

Complaints continue to be received of the upward tendency of prices in the United States. A report on the trade and commerce of the consular district of Boston for the year 1909, just issued, states that the question of prices in more than ever of great importance, the steady increase in the price of everything that goes to make up the cost of living being the most serious cloud on the economic horizon at the present time. An official comparison has been made of the prices of necessaries with the price of thirteen years ago, which shows increases up to 150 per cent. :

SOME EXAMPLES.

A partial list of articles so compared follows :

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Breakfast Bacon, per lb ... | 0 5 | 0 11 |
| Navy beans, per qr ... ... | 0 2 1-2 | 0 4¼ |
| Best Elgin butter, per lb... | 1 0 1-2 | 1 7 |
| Purest lard, per lb ......... | 0 3 1-4 | 0 8 |
| Sausages, per lb ........... | 0 5 | 0 9 |
| Irish potatoes, per peck ... | 0 6 | 0 9½ |
| Standard flour, per sack... | 3 11 1-2 | 6 8 |
| Standard flour, per barrel.. | 14 7 | £1 0 10 |

In particular the price of meat has caused great dissatisfaction throughout the country, says the report, the latest development being a crusade against the exorbitant prices by means of a meat boycott. The wholesale price of cattle (live) per cwt. has risen from £1 3s. in 1905 to £1 18s. 6 1-2d. at the close of 1909.

CAUSES OF THE INCREASE.

The report remarks that the causes of the increase in the prices of all commodities have been variously stated by prominent economists and politicians the principal factors being usually considered to be trusts the tariff the over-production of gold over-spending i. e., waste from buying more than is needed the wholesale desertion of the farms for the cities, and the great increase in money spent in luxuries. In connexion with the foregoing remarks it should be noted, the report continues, that the per capita circulation of money has increased almost without a break from 1896 to the present time. In 1896 it was £4 9s. 3½d., compared with £7 5s. 6 1-2d.. in 1909.

THE ROMANCE OF MISSIONARY ENTERPRISE.

The Rev. Arthur Ward deals in an interesting manner with the romantic story of missionary exploration in the July number of "Travel and Exploration," and in view of the great interest taken in the World's Missionary Conference at Edinburgh this article should be of distinct topical interest. Mr. Ward's article refers mainly to the Moravian Mission, and certainly in the field of geographical research and discovery the Moravian missionaries have taken prominent rank. It is emphatically the pioneer mission. From Labrador to Surinam, from the frozen solitudes of Thibet and the snowy wastes of Alaska to the sun-scorched plains of Queensland, will be found an outpost of the Moravian Mission.

THE REAL PATHFINDERS.

There are a few great explorers whose names are known to everybody ; but the real pathfinders are unknown men—missionaries, adventurers, colonists, hunters, trappers, and native guides, Novelists, from Defoe down to R. L. Stevenson, have gone to them for the raw material of romance ; while the serious historian of exploration does not hesitate to acknowledge his indebtedness to the work of the unknown pioneer or obscure adventurer. When Scott does not know what to do with the hero of "St. Ronan's Well," he makes him disappear among the Moravian missionaries.

WHAT SOME OF THEM HAVE DONE.

Fenimore Cooper's backwoodsmen and Indians know them. M'Clure takes one as interpreter on his expedition in search of Franklin. Another goes with Nordenskjold, and is drowned on his way back to Greenland. Sven Hedin disappears into Thibet from one Moravian mission-station and reappears at another. Stein, returning from his second journey to Central Asia, calls to his aid a Moravian missionary, who crosses several high mountain chains by forced marches, performs a successful operation in difficult circumstances, and carries his patient safely home to Leh. Dillon Wallace, having found the "Long Trail" in Labrador, travels homeward by a chain of Moravian mission-stations for five hundred miles.

THE GUEST WHO NEVER CAME.

Visitors to Guernsey are sometimes able to see Hauteville, where Victor Hugo, the French poet, lived and died. In this house, the "Sunday at Home" reminds us, is a handsomely furnished room, which was specially prepared by Victor Hugo for Garibaldi, the emancipator of Italy, who had promised to be his guest. Everything which Victor Hugo thought Garibaldi would appreciate was placed in this room. But Garibaldi changed his plans and never visited Hauteville. To-day the room has a pathetic interest, prepared for the guest who never came.

A SMOKELESS LOCOMOTIVE.

The smokeless locomotive has been invented once more. This time the discovery is reported from Chicago. An example of the new type, burning bituminous coal drew a train of cars the other day from the stockyards a distance of twenty-eight miles without letting off smoke or gas. The trial trip was watched by a number of railway men, who professed themselves satisfied. The general public will hope that this announcement is not too good to be true, and this desire will be intensified in the case of railway shareholders by the report that the new device will save from 35 to 60 per cent. of the normal fuel consumption.

Advice to Mothers.—Are you broken in your rest by a sick child suffering with the pain of cutting teeth? Go at once to a chemist and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor sufferer immediately. It is perfectly harmless and pleasant to taste, it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as bright as a button. It soothes the child, it softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for dysentery and diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup is sold by medicine dealers everywhere.

GREEN ROOM GOSSIP.

"PRISCILLA RUNS AWAY."

The Countess von Arnim's comedy, "Priscilla Runs Away," produced at the Haymarket Theatre will crowd the playhouse for many months to come. It is a pretty comedy, often humorous and sometimes witty, a little over long in parts and unduly farcical in others ; but it is almost unceasingly amusing, and there runs through it a pretty touch of sentiment. It is an attractive play—but it does not in itself contain qualities sufficiently striking to account for the enthusiasm of the first night. That enthusiasm was evoked by Miss Neilson-Terry, the daughter of Mr. Fred Terry and Miss Julia Neilson, who, as Miss Phillida Terson, only the other day made her first appearance in the Shakesperian revivals at His Majesty's Theatre. Even then, writes a London correspondent, it was recognised that a new "star" had been suddenly born, and on this occasion, the young actress, surely not yet twenty years of age, completed her conquest. Tall and beautiful, Miss Neilson-Terry carried the new play upon her shoulders to final success. Some slight evidences there whare of the inexperience and indecision of the novice, but they were very slight, and they were entirely overshadowed by the gaiety, the assurance, and the charm of the youthful artist. Seldom has an actress sprung so suddenly into fame and popularity : the augury of the last night speaks of a splendid career for the youngest representatives of a famous theatrical family. Sometimes Miss Neilson-Terry suggested her aunt, Ellen, sometimes her mother, Miss Julia Neilson (Mrs. Fred Terry)—but only by some reminder of voice and gesture. In all essentials she was herself, a regal radiant, and youthful figure with an astonshing mastery of the technique of her art and a natusalness quite remarkable in one whose career can yet only be numbered by months.

TRIUMPH OF A YOUNG ACTRESS.

The Princess Priscilla of Lothen-Kunitz runs away rather than enter into the royal alliance planned for her. Trained by the splendid old visionary, Herr Fritzing, the Grand-Ducal librarian, she longs for freedom, to go down into the depths in aid of the poor. And when she discovers that her hand has been promised to her cousin, the Prince of Lucerne, without her consent being asked, she—although, unknown to herself, she really loves the Prince—runs away. Taking old Fritzing by the hand, dragging him unwillingly at her heels, she flies to England, where, as Fraulein Ethel Maria Theresa Neumann-Schultz, she starts out to enact the part of the village Lady Bountiful. She makes a dreadful mess of things. She gets woefully into debt, and hears from the village tradesmen some very hard truths. She has to box the ears of an obstreperous young undergraduate ; she almost breaks the heart of the adoring young squire. She is politely insulted by the vicar's wife ; sets an old woman upon the road to intemperance by providing her with rum, and by giving the village children tea on Sunday—a tea of revelry and joyousness—she undermines the discipline of the community and earns the opprobrium of the Church—as represented by the vicar's wife—by her absolute oblivion of the tenets of a rigid Sabbatarianism. All this she does with the most alluring innocence. In her attempt to ease the path-way of the poor she calls down upon her devoted head the seathing criticisms of the local labourers who, ignorant of her identity, curse the stupidity of these in high places who seek to help them by trying to come to their level instead of sending help from on top. Dreadfully in debt, the Princess has to endure vulgar dunning, the sneers of the harsh and narrow-minded Mrs. Morrison, the disagreeable attentions of the vicar's son. It is all informed with humour and inventiveness. The gradual growth in the girl's mind of the knowledge that she loves her cousin, and the womanly lack of logic in her anger that, although she ran away from him, he has not made instant efforts to find her, are deftly displayed to us. It is sometimes a little too noisy and obvious, but it is always amusing and now and again sentiment comes uppermost, with a strong, if simple appeal. Of course, the Prince has not deserted her, but has come to England, incognito, and is watching over her. It is his plan to let Priscilla run away. It has been given out in Lothen-Kunitz that Priscilla is very ill; and, in the last act, her father, in despair, is about to declare that she is dead, in order to rid himself of the complications which are growing around him. The first and last acts, in the German Court, are not the happiest of the four, despite much that is laughable in them. The last borders on farce. The audience, however, forgave the too lengthy first and the overdrawn last act, for the pictures of village England which separated them.

"THE GARDEN OF ALLAH."

Mr. Robert Hichens, the novelist, has dramatised his fine novel "The Garden of Allah," which should make a powerful, if sombre, play. The figure of the monk who loves, marries, and lives for a little while with his wife in the desert, which Mr. Hichen paints for us so admirably, to return at last to celibacy and the monastery from which he fled to discover the world and love, should prove as intensely emotional on the stage as in print. It should be an alluring character to an actor. and that of the heroine, the monk's wife, should be hardly less dominating.

MISS EDITH WYNNE MATTHISON.

Miss Edith Wynne Matthison is to remain with the New Theatre Company, New York, for another season. After that she will become a "star" in a modern play to be written by her husband, Mr. Charles Rann Kennedy. Miss Matthison emphasised the fact to an interviewer that she is an American now "Mr. Kennedy and I are Americans now," said Miss Matthison. "We hope to remain here and do what we can on the American stage. I think this country has tremendous dramatic possibilities. And many of the new plays which are being written by young American authors are most interesting. Several of those brought out within the last year or two are very strong."

MR. GORDEN CRAIG.

An interview in a Moscow newspaper with V. S. Nemirovitch Dantchenko, director of the Artistic Theatre of that city, reveals the fact that the director of this famous playhouse is a great admirer of Mr. Gorden Craig, editor of "The Mask," and now known throughout the world as an artistic innovator. "Hamlet" is being put on the stage of the Koudojeftvennij Theatre by C. S. Stanislawsky and Mr. Graig Mr. Nemirovitch tells many interesting things about Mr. Craig's views and work. "First of all," he says, "Craig is quite an exceptional stage director. Generally a stage director always works with an artist—only with an artist. Mr. Craig unites in one person the director and the artist ; the stage director, who unveils the spirit of the author, gives a detailed psychological analysis of the parts and detailed characteristics ; the artist, who gives the most details designs of scenery, costumes, lighting and make-up—namely, the whole mise-en-scene—everything that is generally done by the stage director together with the artist. Mr. Craig needs only the scene shifters and carpenters to produce the play.

WORK WITH THE ACTORS.

"There still remains one great portion of the stage director's work—work with the actors. Here Mr. Craig has quite definite views as to the manner and methods which he thinks are needful—beautiful. How he works with actors we shall never know, as both sides speak different languages. Stanislawsky is quite under the fascination of what he calls Craig's genius. Generally the literary and psychological side of each production devolves on me but those few sittings at which I assisted have evoked in me such a confidence in Craig—he illuminates so profoundly, so gracefully, with such taste and nobility the meaning and sense of 'Hamlet'—that I had nothing to do. He is going to produce play as a poetical drama not belonging to any particular epoch, and there is no epoch in 'Hamlet,' where the legend belongs to the ninth century and the idea to the Renaissance. We put the whole theatre at Mr. Craig's disposal." Mr. Craig says that since he became a stage manager he had never dreamed of finding a theatre where an artist could work so freely as in this Moscow theatre. He himself works very hard. "Hamlet" will have only four entr'actes. All the changing of scenes will take place without a curtain before the eyes of the audience. Mr. Craig does not leave anything out, and assures his confreres that the performance will not last long. Mr. Nemirovitch is a man of great literary ability as well as of practical business capacity, and therefore this interview with him as to the coming production of "Hamlet" under the management of Mr. Craig is of especial interest.

WORLD-FAMED

GUTTÆ VITÆ

Or, LIFE DROPS.

The Great European Remedy for Nervous and Functional Exhaustion.

This extraordinary rejuvenating essence strengthens the vitality of the whole system, gives energy to the muscles, and speedily restores the impaired powers of life, imparting strength and manly vigour to the most debilitated and worn out constitution. Those who suffer from Premature Decay, or deficiency or the Vital Forces, owing to dissipation, worry, overwork, excesses, or any other cause, will find this medicine just what they require. Equally adapted for the studious and sedentary; the aged and infirm; the nervous and debilitated; as also for delicate females and weakly children. All sufferers from loss of appetite, nervous headache, lassitude, and despondency—too often accompanied with suicidal thoughts—should make immediate and fair unprejudiced trial of this wonderful medicine, which is daily effecting the most remarkable cures in patients who had been given up by the Faculty as incurable, and left to drag out the remainder of their existence a misery to themselves, and a continual anxiety to their friends. In all cases of nervous and functional debility, epilepsy, impurity and poorness of the blood, aversion to and incapacity for society, study, or business, giddiness, disturbed sleep, harassing dreams, loss of memory, and other symptoms, the result of self-acquired ailments that embitter and shorten life, it is truly unrivalled. To married persons especially, this preparation will prove inv[illegible]able, giving strength and vigour in place of lassitude and incompetency. Price 11s., or four times that quantity, 33s. Bottle.

Purchasers are particularly requested to see that every package of Dr. DE ROOS' Medicines bears the British Government Stamp, with the words, "WALTER DE ROOS, LONDON," impressed thereon in white letters on a red ground, and refuse worthless [illegible]ations frequently put forward by unscrupulous vendors for the sake of extra profit.

CONSUMPTION AND DISEASES OF THE CHEST, THROAT AFFECTIONS, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, WASTING DISEASES OF CHILDREN, RICKETS, AND ALL SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

DR. PROSSER JAMES,
Lecturer on Materia Medica, London Hospital.

"Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL contains the whole of the active ingredients of the remedy, and is easily digested. Hence its value, not only in Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, but in a great number of cases to which the Profession is extending its use."

DR. HUNTER SEMPLE,
Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat and Chest, London.

"I have long been aware of the great reputation enjoyed by the LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL introduced into medical practice by Dr. DE JONGH, and have recommended it with the utmost confidence. I have no hesitation in stating my opinion, that it possesses all the qualities of a good and efficient medicine. Its taste is by no means disagreeable, and might even be called pleasant. I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S OIL very useful in cases of Chronic Cough, and especially in Laryngeal Disease complicated with Consumption."

DR. SAUNDERS, C.B.,
Late Deputy-Inspector-General Army Hospitals, Superintendent London Medical Mission.

"I have used Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL extensively among the sick poor of St. Giles's, and consider it a valuable remedy, especially in the Wasting Diseases of Children."

DR. WHITMORE,
Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone, London.

"My own somewhat lengthened experience as a Medical Practitioner enables me with confidence to recommend Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT BROWN COD LIVER OIL as being more uniform in quality, more certain in its effects, more palatable, and infinitely less likely to disagree with the stomach than the Pale Oil. If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL, I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and regiminal properties, and which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination."

Dr. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL is supplied ONLY in IMPERIAL Half-Pints, Pints and Quarts, sealed with BETTS' Patent Capsule impressed on the top with Dr. DE JONGH'S Stamp, and on the side with his Signature, and the Signature of ANSAR, HARFORD & Co.; and bearing under the wrapper a Label with the same Stamp and Signatures.
